Strategy & Execution

"A guest called me mid-passage asking where the seacock was. I was at the helm. That was the moment."

— Marco Fritz, Co-Founder

PROBLEM

Guests feel lost — and skippers spend more time answering questions than sailing

"Where is the...?"

Guests can't find basic equipment. Every question forces the skipper to stop what they're doing and play tour guide.

Every single hour

at minimum, on a typical charter day

Manuals nobody reads

400+ pages buried in the chart table in three languages. Nobody reads them before a problem arises — and finding the answer takes 20 minutes.

0% read rate

on the Bavaria C50 manual, per Marco's own experience

Skippers become babysitters

Experienced skippers repeat the same answers all season instead of sailing. Guest satisfaction drops. Their satisfaction drops too.

30–40%

of skipper time lost to repetitive guest questions

PROBLEM

Every confused guest costs you — in calls, reviews, and repeat bookings

High staff workload

Your base team fields calls about the windlass, the engine, the navigation system. These are preventable. Your staff has better things to do.

Operational Cost

Poor reviews

A confused guest is an unhappy guest. Feeling lost aboard a charter yacht goes straight into the review — and affects your entire fleet's visibility on booking platforms.

Revenue Risk

No scalable solution

Every boat briefing is one-to-one and once. There is no way to reliably transfer boat knowledge to 50 guest groups across a season — without a tool built for it.

Scalability Gap

Ask anything. Get the answer. Instantly.

BAVARIA C50 — CHARTER GUEST CHAT

How do I start the engine if the bow thruster battery is flat?

The bow thruster has its own battery — the main engine is unaffected. Start normally via the ignition panel. See Engine Manual p. 34.

Where is the fire extinguisher?

Two extinguishers: one under the galley sink, one in the starboard cockpit locker. Both are ABC class powder.

Natural language

No search, no scrolling. Guests ask like they'd ask a person.

Boat-specific knowledge

SailSmart knows your exact model — manuals, configs, systems.

24 / 7 — no skipper needed

Available in port, at anchor, mid-passage. Guests get answers without disturbing anyone.

Three steps. Zero complexity.

01

We upload your manuals

Send us your boat documentation. We index everything into SailSmart, configured for your exact models.

02

Guests scan a QR code

A sticker in the cockpit. One scan — SailSmart loads in the browser, pre-configured for that exact boat. No app. No login.

03

Any question → instant answer

SailSmart searches the indexed manuals and returns the right answer with the source page referenced. No calls to base. No waiting.

A REAL SCENARIO

21:30. Marina Portocolom. Skipper is ashore.

WITHOUT SAILSMART

Your guest can't get the hot water to work. They message the marina — no answer. They call your base — voicemail. They wait. They're frustrated. The next morning, they leave a 2-star review: "Poor boat handover, nobody available for help."

WITH SAILSMART

Guest scans the QR code in the cockpit. Types: "hot water not working". Gets the exact procedure — the right valve, the right sequence — in 10 seconds. Problem solved. Skipper never interrupted. Review: ★★★★★
